Assignment	Booklet Source	Focus Area	Marks
Assignment 1	Aspirations, Feelings & Self–Body	Aspirations mapping, suffering/happiness & gratitude, harmony in Self and Body	20
Assignment 2	Values, Behaviour & Society	Harmony in Behaviour, Physical Facility & Participation; the Nine Human Values	20
Assignment 3	Before & After UHV	Reflective comparison of understanding across 10 core UHV themes	20

Course: Universal Human Values

Submission mode: Individual, handwritten or typed as instructed by faculty

Academic integrity: No copying from classmates or AI tools, Students must answer independently, honestly, and in their own words based on self-observation and experience

Grading Rubric — All Assignments

Applies uniformly to Assignments 1, 2, and 3. Each assignment has 10 questions worth 2 marks each (10 × 2 marks = 20 marks per assignment). Use the criteria below to distribute the 3 marks within each question.

Criteria	Marks / Q	Full Marks	Partial Marks	Minimal / No Marks
Honesty & Self-Observation	1.0	Response is specific, honest, and clearly drawn from the student's own real self-observation; goes beyond generic or "expected" statements.	Response is personal but somewhat general or safe; limited specific detail.	Response is vague, generic, or appears copied/fabricated rather than genuine self-observation.
Connection to the UHV Concept	0.5	Correctly and clearly applies the relevant UHV concept (e.g., Preconditioning/Sensation/Natural Acceptance, harmony in Self/Body, the nine values) to the personal example.	Concept is mentioned but only loosely or partially connected to the example.	Concept is missing, misunderstood, or not linked to the answer at all.
Depth of Reflection	0.5	Answer shows genuine self-analysis — the "why" behind the observation, not just a description of events, within the given scope.	Some reflection present, but mostly describes what happened without deeper analysis.	Purely descriptive, incomplete, or no reflection offered.

Academic integrity note: Since every question asks for honest self-observation from the student's own life, answers that are copied, generic, or clearly not the student's own reflection should be awarded zero for that question, regardless of writing quality.

ASSIGNMENT 1

Aspirations, Feelings & Self–Body Harmony

Student Name: Pankhuri Gupta Roll No: RA2511056010353 Date: 13.11.26

Instructions: Answer every question honestly, based on your own life. This is not a test of the "right" answer — you are being assessed on the depth of understanding and honesty of your self-observation.

Q1. Mapping My Aspirations

List your aspirations under each head below (at least 3 points each):

To Become	To Do	To Get	To Be
A skilled professional	complete my education	a stable job	happy
A responsible person	support my family	Financial Independence	Confident independent individual	Help people	comfortable life	Peaceful

Conclusion — what do these aspirations tell you about what you are really seeking: something for the Self, or something for the Body?

My aspirations show that I want both physical facilities and happiness within myself. Money and a job can provide comfort, but lasting happiness comes from good relationships, satisfaction and inner peace.

Q2. Suffering, Happiness & Their Source

List at least six recent events from your life — a mix of suffering and happy moments — and classify each:

#	Event / Situation	Suffering or Happy?	P / S / NA
1	Recieving good marks	happy	p
2	spending time with friends	happy	na
3	comparing my grades with others	suffering	p
4	Enjoying my favourite food	happy	s
5	stressed before exams	suffering	p
6	content in my life	happy	na

Roughly what percentage of your events fall into each category? P: 50 % S: 17 % NA: 33 %

Q3. My Gratitude List

List at least five people you feel grateful to, with a specific reason for each:

#	Person	Reason for Gratitude
1	Mom	for constant care nd emotional support
2	Dad	for always support
3	friends	staying wth me through tough times
4	Family members	making me feel valued

Reflect: is your gratitude based mainly on what they gave you materially, or on the relationship and feeling they gave you?

My gratitude is mainly connected to relationships, care and emotional support rather than material things.

Q4. Is My Self in Harmony?

What percentage of your time are you comfortable within yourself? Honestly describe your inner feelings — do you experience more opposition/conflict, or more trust/peace?

I feel comfortable with myself around 65% of the time. Sometimes I overthink my future, academic performance and other people's opinions. However, when I understand my priorities and accept my mistakes, I feel more peaceful. I want to reduce unnecessary comparisons and develop trust in myself.

Q5. Observing My Inner Reactions

How much inner reaction do you experience, even when it doesn't show outwardly? How much time each day are you genuinely aware of your own thoughts and imagination?

I sometimes experience frustration, anxiety or disappointment without expressing these feelings outwardly. I am consciously aware of my thoughts for only a limited part of the day. I have realized that observing my reactions before responding can help me make better decisions and maintain harmony within myself

Q6. Validation, Excellence & Being Special

Do you feel good when others praise you, or find yourself depending on external validation? Honestly reflect: are you working towards excellence, or are you mainly driven by wanting to be seen as special or different?

I feel happy when someone appreciates my efforts, but sometimes I become dependent on external validation. I occasionally compare my achievements with others. I understand that excellence means improving my knowledge and abilities, while wanting to appear special is based on comparison.

Q7. My Vision for Life

Does your current vision for life include the individual, family, society, and nature — or is it mostly about yourself? Describe your current vision honestly.

My current vision mainly focuses on education, career and supporting my family.

Q8. Food & Daily Routine

Describe your typical daily diet — is it mostly nutritious food, or mostly junk food? Describe your daily routine (wake-up time, sleep, general habits) and assess whether it is conducive to good health.

My daily diet includes regular meals, but sometimes I eat unhealthy snacks or skip meals because of a busy schedule. My sleep routine can become irregular during examinations.

Q9. Screen Time & Use of Physical Facility

Roughly how much time do you spend daily on physical labour/exercise compared with screen time (phone, TV, laptop)? Are the clothes and gadgets you use chosen mainly for health/utility, or mainly for fashion and show?

I spend several hours using my phone and laptop for studying, communication and entertainment. My physical activity is comparatively limited.i make choice based on utiliy only

Q10. My Cleanliness & Hygiene

Honestly reflect on your level of personal cleanliness and hygiene, and that of your room and surroundings. What is one thing you would like to improve?

try to maintain personal hygiene by bathing regularly, wearing clean clothes and keeping my belongings organized. However, during busy academic periods, my room sometimes becomes untidy

ASSIGNMENT 2

Harmony in Behaviour, Society & Human Values

Student Name: Pankhuri Gupta Roll No: RA511056010353 Date: 13.11.26

Instructions: Answer every question honestly, based on your own life and relationships. Where a task asks for a personal example, use a real one - not a hypothetical.

Q1. Describe your understanding on Nine Human Values

Value	My Understanding about this feeling
Trust	Having confidence in another person's intention
Respect	Recognizing the equal worth of every one
Affection	Feeling connected to others
Care	Taking responsibility for another person's physical well-being and mental
Guidance	Helping someone develop right understanding and make better decisions
Reverence	Respecting people who have achieved excellence
Glory	Appreciating those who contribute to human welfare
Gratitude	Recognizing and appreciating people who have helped me
Love	Feeling connected to all human beings and wishing for their happiness

Q2. Trust or Opposition in My Relationships

How many people in your family and friend circle do you trust unconditionally, based on their intention rather than their behaviour? In your relationships, do you generally feel trust, or opposition/lack of concern? Describe with two specific examples.

I have a few family members and close friends whose intentions I trust deeply. Sometimes their behaviour may disappoint me, but I understand that their intentions are not necessarily wrong. when my parents advise me about studying, I may initially feel pressured, but I understand their concern for my future. Similarly, when a friend cannot help me immediately, I try not to assume that they do not care about me.

Q3. Respect in My Relationships

In your family and friend circle observe three recent interactions: was your evaluation of the other person accurate, an over-evaluation, or an under-evaluation — and what about their evaluation of you?

In one interaction, I appreciated a friend for helping me study, which was an accurate evaluation of their contribution. another situation, I underestimated a family member's advice because I thought my opinion was better. Later, I realized that their experience was valuable.Sometimes I also feel that others underestimate my efforts. I understand that respect should be based on correct evaluation rather than comparison, appearance or status.

Q4. Competition or Cooperation

In your daily interactions, do you make more effort toward competition or toward cooperation? Describe one recent example.

I sometimes become competitive about academic performance, especially during examinations. However, I also enjoy helping friends understand difficult topics. when my roomate struggles with a subject, sharing notes and explaining concepts benefits both of us. I have learned that cooperation encourages mutual growth, whereas excessive competition can create unnecessary stress

Q5. My Use of Physical Facility

Do you use physical facilities (money, gadgets, resources) appropriately, or do you tend towards indulgence? Honestly estimate how much of your spending goes toward "show-off" versus genuine need.

generally spend money on food, educational requirements, transportation and personal necessities. However, sometimes I am intrested in by things because they are fashionable or popular.As an estimate, around 85% of my spending goes toward needs and 15% toward unnecessary purchases. I want to become more conscious of my actual requirements

Q6. Production vs. Consumption Mindset

Do you have more of a mindset of labour/production, or of buying/consuming? Do you have a clear (absolute) sense of how much physical facility you actually need, or does your sense of "enough" change based on what others around you have?

Currently, I depend more on consuming goods and services because I am a student. However, I contribute through studying, completing projects, helping others and developing useful skills.Sometimes my idea of having enough changes when I see others buying new things. I want to understand my actual needs and avoid unnecessary consumption.

Q7. How I Participate for society

Describe a recent instance where you participated as a volunteer for Society didn't really do something like this

Q8. What Drives My Participation

Is your participation in family, institute, or community activities driven mainly by a larger vision, or by personal gain? Reflect honestly, with an example.

My participation is sometimes influenced by personal benefits such as gaining experience, marks or recognition.

Q9. A Story of Human Values

Write a short story (150–200 words), fictional or from real life, that clearly reflects at least one of the nine human values shaping a character's decision, behaviour, or relationship.

Riya and Ananya were classmates who had been working together on a college project. A day before the submission, Ananya could not complete her assigned work because of a family emergency. Riya initially felt angry and thought Ananya had been careless. She considered removing Ananya's name from the project. However, instead of making an immediate decision, she called her friend to understand what had happened.After listening to Ananya's situation, Riya realized that her friend had not intentionally neglected her responsibility. She decided to support her rather than blame her.They divided the remaining tasks and worked together to finish the project. Ananya thanked Riya for understanding her situation and promised to communicate earlier whenever she faced a difficulty. Their friendship became stronger because they chose communication over misunderstanding. Riya learned that trust means understanding another person's intention, even when their behaviour does not meet our expectations. She also realized that cooperation and care are more meaningful than blaming someone during a difficult situation.

Value(s) my story reflects: grattitude , respect

Q.10 My Commitment for the Future & Life

> Instructions: Having studied Universal Human Values, write your personal commitment for the future — how you intend to live and apply these values in your relationship with your Self, your Family, Society, and Nature, going forward.

Based on everything you have reflected on in this booklet, write your commitment: what is one specific change you commit to making in how you think, behave, or relate to others — starting from today?

I want to develop right understanding and maintain harmony within myself, my family, society and nature.
I will try to become more patient, communicate respectfully, avoid unnecessary comparisons and use resources responsibly.One specific change I want to make is to listen carefully before reacting during disagreements. I believe this will improve my relationships and help me become a more understanding person.

ASSIGNMENT 3

Before & After UHV — My Understanding of Life

Student Name: Pankhuri Gupta Roll No: RA2511056010353 Date: 13.11.26

Instructions: For each topic below, briefly write your thoughts / assumptions BEFORE this UHV course, and your understanding NOW, after studying UHV. Write at least 2–3 sentences in each box. Honest change (or honest lack of change) is what is being assessed, not a "correct" answer.

Q1. Happiness & Prosperity (3 marks)

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Happiness	I thought happiness came from good marks, money and getting what I wanted. I believed success meant being happy.	I understand that happiness comes from inner peace and good relationships. Material things alone cannot keep me happy.
Prosperity	I thought being prosperous meant having a lot of money and expensive things. I believed more money meant a better life.	I thought being prosperous meant having a lot of money and expensive things. I believed more money meant a better life.

Q2. Goal and Steps Toward the Goal

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Goal & Steps	My main goal was to study well and get a good job. I mostly focused on marks and career success.	My main goal was to study well and get a good job. I mostly focused on marks and career success.

Q3. Purpose of Education

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Purpose of Education	I thought education was mainly for getting marks, a degree and a job. I focused more on results than learning.	I understand that education also teaches us how to become better people. It should help me develop skills, values and responsibility.

Q4. Excellence and Competition

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Excellence & Competition	I used to compare my marks and achievements with others. I thought being better than others meant being successful.	I understand that excellence means improving myself instead of defeating others. I want to focus on learning and growing at my own pace.

Q5. Trust

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Trust	I used to judge people mainly by their actions. If someone disappointed me, I sometimes felt they didn't care.	I understand that a person's intentions and actions can be different. I should try to understand them before making assumptions.

Q6. Respect

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Respect	I thought people deserved more respect because of their age, achievements or position. I sometimes judged people based on these things	I understand that everyone deserves equal respect. I should value people for who they are rather than their status.

Q7. Gratitude

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Gratitude	I usually felt thankful when someone helped me or gave me something. I didn't always notice the small things people did for me.	I understand that gratitude means appreciating people's efforts and care. I want to express my thanks more often

Q8. Love

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Love	thought love was mainly about attachment and being close to someone. I sometimes expected people to show love in a particular way.	I understand that love includes trust, respect and care. It is also about understanding others without unnecessary expectations.

Q9. Myself, Family, Society & Nature

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Myself (Human Being)	I mostly focused on my studies and personal problems. I didn't always pay attention to my inner feelings.	I understand that my mental peace and physical health are both important. I want to take better care of myself.
Family	I saw my family mainly as people who supported and cared for me. I sometimes took their efforts for granted.	I understand that I also have responsibilities toward my family. I want to be more understanding and supportive.
Society	I didn't think much about my role in society. I mostly focused on my own life.	I understand that even small actions can help others. I want to be more responsible and cooperative.
Nature	I knew nature was important, but I didn't think much about how I used resources. I sometimes wasted things without realizing it.	I understand that we depend on nature for everything. I want to reduce waste and use resources carefully.

Q10. Existence & Co-Existence

	My thoughts BEFORE UHV	My thoughts NOW (after UHV)
Existence	I thought existence simply meant being alive. I didn't think much about how everything in nature is connected.	I understand that existence includes all units present in space. Everything has its own role in the larger system.
Co-Existence	I thought humans, animals and nature existed separately. I didn't understand how much they depend on one another.	I understand that everything exists together and is interconnected. Maintaining balance and harmony is important for everyone.
